

Gorick Construction Co. Inc.

Family business remains agile in fluctuating industry

Produced by Ryan Fecteau and Written by Tom Faunce

Specializing in heavy highway construction, earth moving and demolition, New York-based Gorick Construction Co. Inc. has built a diverse portfolio of projects and clients for more than 70 years. Located in Binghamton, New York, Gorick Construction maintains a team of experts that offer a vast array of services that include demolition, landfill and environmental construction, crushing and material recycling, mass excavation, heavy highway construction and site development to name a few.

Gorick Construction works within a 120-mile radius of its headquarters but will travel as necessary for certain clients and projects. In addition to providing value engineering alternatives on each project, the company provides clients with complete and accurate estimates using computerized take off and 3-D modeling.

Founded by Alfred and Stephanie Gorick in 1945, Gorick Construction has remained a family business. Today, the couple's son, Al Gorick, is president of the company. Joining Gorick Construction full time in 1986, Gorick has been involved with the company his entire life and received a bachelor's degree in civil environmental engineering from Clarkson University. Al's sister Sally Shirk is the corporate secretary and Trevor Moyer serves as the company's vice president of operations.

The team's extensive expertise doesn't stop there. Gorick Construction boasts 45 highly trained employees and maintains a fleet of more than 60 pieces of late-model heavy construction equipment, including the company's two ultra-high-reach demolition excavators and Trimble GPS machine-controlled equipment. These pieces of machinery ensure that Gorick Construction is able to fulfill its motto – "Whatever it takes."

A dedication to excellence and forward thinking has enabled Gorick Construction to remain a leader in the industry. Through various organizations, the company has received recognition for numerous projects. One form of recognition came in the form of the Gold Safety Award from the New York State Chapter of the General Contractors of America. The company has also received numerous Gold Safety Awards through its association with the Northeastern Subcontractors Association, which represents more than 500 eastern New York subcontractors, specialty contractors and material suppliers.
